

The old bread oven revealed in renovations, thought to have been in the 1950s – photograph in Oundle Museum

James Green is recorded in the 1854 Post Office Directory as a baker and also a farmer.

COTTERSTOCK.

415

[NORTHAMPTON.]

COTTERSTOCK and GLAPTHORN.

COTTERSTOCK is a parish in the Hundred of Willibrook, and Oundle Union, 2 miles north-north-east from Oundle. The living is a discharged vicarage, untied with Glapthorn, value £91, in the archdeaconry of Northampton, and diocese of Peterborough; the Hon. and Rev. Thomas Clotworthy Skeffington, M.A., is the incumbent. The church, dedicated to St. Andrew, is an ancient structure, with a square tower. It was at Cotterstock Hall, in this parish, that the poet Dryden composed his fables, and here he spent the two last summers of his life. The population, in 1851, was 176. The manor belongs to the Dowager Countess of Westmoreland.

GLAPTHORN is a village in Willibrook Hund red and Oundle Union, 1½ miles north from Oundle; the population, in 1851, was 457. The living is united with Cotterstock. The church is dedicated to St. Leonard. The Earl of Cardigan is lord of the manor. Here is a Free school for children of both sexes, under the patronage and sole support of the Earl of Cardigan, under whose auspices a provident club has been instituted for the purpose of providing the poor during the winter with warm clothing and coals, to the funds for procuring which his lordship is the principal contributor.

Cotterstock.

Chapman John, esq
Rickett Capt. James, H.C.S
Skeffington Hon. & Rev. Thomas
Clotworthy, M.A. Vicarage
Westmoreland Dowager Countess of, the Hall

TRADERS.

Berridge William, carpenter
Bream Thomas, 'Gate'
Bucknell James, shoemaker
Everest John, corn merchant & farmer
Fortescue John, farmer, Lodge
Green James, baker

Green James, farmer
Quincey Sanders, beer retailer
Warren William, blacksmith
Letters through Thrapston

Glapthorn.

TRADERS.

Barnett Henry, baker
Barwell John, grocer & shoemaker
Bell John, grocer & shoemaker
Carley Thomas, farmer, Provost lodge
Davidson George Gordon, master of Free school
Freeman James, farmer
Hancock John, butcher

Hancock John, 'Royal Oak,' & farmer
Hudson Charles, shopkeeper
Hudson George, carpenter
Hudson Thomas, wheelwright
Kirby Henry, farmer & grazier
Knighton Isaac, farmer & grazier
Marratt Joseph, butcher
Palmer Jonas, tailor
Palmer Thomas, beer retailer
Plant Thomas, farmer & grazier
Rollinson Samuel, farmer, Provost ldge
Rowlatt Samuel, blacksmith
Spencer Matthew, beer retailer & mason
Letters through Oundle

COTTESBROOKE is a parish and neat village in the southern division of the county, Hundred of Guilsborough and Union of Brixworth, 12 miles north-east from Daventry, 12 south-west from Kettering, 9 north from Northampton, 14 south-west from Willibrook, 101 south from Market six bells and a clock. The living is a rectory, value £400, in the diocese of Peterborough and patronage of Sir James Langham, Bart.; the Hon. and Rev. Paul Anthony Irby, M.A., is the incumbent. A hospital for two widowers and six widows was founded in 1651, and endowed with 53

It must have been a busy household because James and Ann had eleven children: Fanny, Ann, Catherine, George, Emma, Mary, Elizabeth, Oakley, James, John and Joseph.

The Green family ran the bakery and lived at The Bakehouse in Cotterstock for at least 60 consecutive years. From the 1901 Census we learn that James's son Joseph was, by then 53, a baker living at the family home and continuing with the family profession.

Ann died on the 6th October 1873 aged 64 years and she is buried in St Andrew's.

